This is a brief introduction of who I am and what I plan to achieve in my journey to becoming a fantastic Data Scientist!

My name is Fathma and I have just unlocked a passion for data analysis, solving problems and poking at things to see what they are about in terms of data and information technology!

In the next 3 years, I will be working to upskill myself in the information technology space and work towards more projects and internships to helps me get my skills out there.

I'm excited!
